

THE SALINE COUNTY JOURNAL.
THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 1871.

Fine dress-suits are selling at Heller's at dirt cheap.

The latest news "by Wallace" is that Max is home.

Sheldon Brothers are building a fine addition to their mill.

A new livery stable is to be started in this city by an Ohio man.

The stone buildings are rapidly pushed towards completion.

Dress up! Don't look so "starchy!" Go to the Salina Clothing Store.

Thanks to Miss Mattie Grier for her hand-bouquet of roses.

Since the rain Salina has the watery streets, but not the gondolas, of Venice.

At Goodnow's lumber yard is found the best quality of lumber in western Kansas.

Some of our business men have commenced building twelve-foot sidewalks.

At Conner & Brown's livery stable will be found the finest kind of carriages and horses.

The prairies are covered with a profusion of sweetly smelling wild flowers. The air is fragrant.

For anything in the farm, lot, or insurance line, or for Agricultural College scrip, go to Durham.

Dr. Bailey has built a new barn. His new house is nearly completed. He will fence his lots soon.

Some of our citizens had better clean out their pig-pens, or some of the plagues of Egypt will visit us.

Mr. John Good has built one of those roomy and bewitching porches, so often found in the South, to his house on Fourth street.

One of the prettiest showers we have witnessed in this country happened yesterday evening. Hurrah for splendid crops this year!

When oppressed with this world's cares, and weighed down in spirit, go to Whitman's and tickle your palates with his luscious ice-cream.

Delays are dangerous. Don't neglect your insurance but take out a policy with W. M. Durham. He represents first-class companies.

Santa Fe Avenue, with its neatly-painted business houses and rows of green trees, presents a very beautiful appearance from the railroad.

It is reported that an excursion party from Illinois will visit Salina about the 10th of July. If this proves true, let's give them a good reception.

Two articles—one from a "tax-payer," the other from an "Independent"—both good, were received too late for publication this week. They shall be published next week.

We hear of numbers of large droves of Texas cattle being on the road, destined for Salina as a shipping point and mart. The Texas men continue to arrive in our city in advance of the herds.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.—Bishop Davis W. Clark, D. D., of the M. E. Church, died in Cincinnati a few days since. Appropriate memorial services will be held at the Methodist church of this city, next Sabbath (June 4th) at eleven o'clock. All are invited to attend.

Nowhere in the world can be found such beautiful heavens as we see in Kansas. Were there no other attractions in our adopted state, one could still be happy, exclaiming, "beautiful! grand! charming!"

As the clouds, in gold and purple and red, sink slowly down in the far-off West.

Just cutting will commence in the next ten days. The crop will be large and it is confidently anticipated that some fields will yield forty and fifty bushels to the acre. Just now there is a superabundance of rain, which may interfere somewhat with operations, but it will likely end in good time.

We have really concluded that the "Heathen Chinee" are peculiar, especially in tea culture; else why is their tea that comes to us from the "Great United States Tea Company" through the agency of Yee, C. C. Probert, such an improvement over the old style? We do not remember of having ever drunk finer flavored tea than that made from a package presented to us the other day by the company's agent at Salina, Maj. George C. Probert. "Dead loads" of that Probert's.

The Journal says: "District Court commences at Salina on June 1st, one week from next Monday." Which? According to our "Alamyack," "one week from next Monday" will be June 30th.—[Salina Herald.]

"We acknowledge the corn." At the time our portion of the above article was being written, we were busily engaged reading of the wonderful adventures "by sea and land" of Brother Johnathan (copyright secured), "which is why" we made the egregious mistake. Again, pardon us. We meant right.

There are only two saloons in operation in Salina. How does that appear for a town of fifteen hundred inhabitants, situated well to the western border of civilization and one hundred and eighty-six miles west of the Missouri River? It surely betokens, as there are, good morals, and a little rowdiness. The saloons that have been in operation in Salina have been conducted on principles of good order and strict regularity. They have in no wise been doggeries, and it would not be advisable for them to be under a four-hundred-dollar license.

We learn that Brookville is improving very fast. New buildings are going up constantly and the citizens have the utmost faith in their town. Mr. Barney Bohan, Brookville's good-natured marshal, has recently built a new business house 15 by 34 near the stock yards. A new restaurant, one-story and a half high, has been built and is now about completely ready for business. The stock yards are being enlarged for the anticipated big cattle trade. Forty men are constantly employed upon them. They are to be large enough to load a train of twenty-eight cars at one time. Success to our sister town, Brookville.

In company with Mr. Dyer, Salina's most accomplished horseman, on Saturday, we were drawn to take a view of the recently completed trestle track. The track is in the form of an ellipse, one-half mile in extent and about fifty feet in width. The grass and reeds have been thoroughly removed from the track and the surface thereof has been rolled to a great degree of hardness. The track is an inclined plane, thus allowing race horses to turn with perfect ease without slackening their speed. Dr. F. D. Dugan has the contract of constructing the track, and with his usual energy and tact, has "done the thing up brown." The track is a great credit to the projectors, to the society and to the county. It is perfect. Our ride was a fine one; the animal that hauled us faultless in form and motion, about as fast as any in the county we judge, although Dyer "wouldn't let her out," and the driver—all we can say of him is that "we love him."

In "a palace hall," among the bon ton of our city, we hear this week of a rough and tumble "scrimmage" between man and wife. "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." Isn't it?

So said the poet; which remark he would not have made had he stepped in to Lotz & Holland's store with us the other day and viewed himself in one of those beautifully glittering mirrors there displayed. This firm is daily adding to their elegant stock of furniture, and their establishment "outlooks 'em all."

If the Herald man knows how to read English, he will, upon perusing carefully our article of last week on the license question, find that we have not indulged "in a characteristic, sophisticated assault on the City Council." On the other hand we ventured the opinion that the Council would do right in the matter. The unprejudiced reader will not discover any such attack in our article, and for his opinion only we care. Misrepresentation don't win, and of that we are sure. The Herald possesses not a little of the virtue of the Herald, and of that we are sure. The Herald, hard up for capital, would make considerable stock in its favor out of what we said, but it has signally failed.

The other day we had the opportunity of casually "interviewing" Anderson & Ryan's nursery, two miles east of the city. The rough expression "right smart" will best portray our idea of the magnitude of the nursery. On a small knoll are a couple of acres or so of finely growing fruit trees and just below have been planted this season a few acres with grape vines. One of these days, we doubt not, the proprietors will possess a large and growing nursery. Already it has attained good proportions and they have made some money from the sale of trees. There is big scope for the flourishing of not only one but several first-class nurseries about Salina.

One of those strange accidents that will sometimes occur happened yesterday, in which Mr. P. J. Addison, one of our tree dealers, came near losing his life. He was in the habit of using extract of dandelion, it appears, and going to Selig's drug store called for the article. Mr. S. being busy at the time waiting on another customer, handed him down the jar and went on about his other work. Nothing more was thought of the transaction until about the close of the afternoon, when Mr. Addison was taken sick and became speechless and partly insensible. His life was despaired of last evening but this morning hopes are entertained of his recovery. Mr. Addison is a worthy young man and the sad accident is to be deplored.

One hundred persons of the Ohio Colony who are to settle in McPherson county have already arrived at their destination. At least one hundred more will arrive between now and fall. Their new town is located on Turkey creek, near the center of the county, forty miles south of Salina and is named King city, after Dr. King, who has worked and is working up the enterprise and for the interests of the colony. From a short acquaintance with the Doctor we pronounced him a fine gentleman and it is a just tribute to his efficient services that his name should be used. After traveling over a considerable portion of the State he selected that portion in preference for cheap lands, good soil and general advantages for the object desired. They came from Oberlin and vicinity and bear the impression of being well suited to the new life. Thirty of them arrived in the city Friday night and it was a sight to see them striding out the next day, some on foot and some in a wagon, bound for their new home.

The most beautiful view we have seen in Kansas or elsewhere is from the high ground back of the residence of Robert Anderson's, two and a half miles east of Salina. Last Sabbath, for the first time, we were up there. Looking to the west, lies the city, magnificent in its proportions and beauty. The court house, the railroad house and numerous fine residences and business houses loom up in proud distinction. Before Salina, on the east side, is the Smoky Hill River, and beyond and on and on are three or four streams. The beautiful foliage of the timber, the green sward and the many fine farms and tasty farm houses furnish a foreground that is truly lovely. In front, to the rear and on each side the country is well settled. There has been a complete metamorphosis over the whole surface. Five years ago the country was a vast wilderness so far as population was concerned. It is indeed a magnificent view up there.

The obnoxious attack of the "Slimy Herald" on the grammar contained in the Tux Journal of last week, was perfectly stunning! When last week's JOURNAL reached the Herald office, the editorial corps of that paper, which consists of all those individuals that have had their consciences stricken by truths uttered in the columns of the Tux Journal, met in solemn convocation to devise means whereby to "Ku-Klux" us. "Intellect" was there! After a chant by the sympathizing brotherhood, a committee on resolutions was appointed by the "Great Mogul," (of whom legends are his "orderlies") consisting of the one who is watching and praying for a fat county office; the "hen come home to roost" man whose "ugly mug" indicates that he has no rooster; the "barney-mouthed" official; the Pharisaical hymn-book pounder and the played out manny-punny hivelings that "waste their sweetness" in that locality. After consulting all their mellowed dictionaries, grammars and spelling-books, they submitted their report as published in the Herald of last week. They chanted again, "swapped guns," drank, and then adjourned to meet when "the one-horse paper" (as they say) is issued again. In looking over the first local column of the Herald we found ten errors; two in the criticism upon our language. In the second column we found four, and in the third six. Let the people read closely and they will discover them.

One of the saddest accidents that ever occurred in this country happened at the junction of the Smoky Hill and Saline rivers, five miles east of Salina, last Saturday. A company of gentlemen, viz: Ransom Calkins, Esq., E. D. Calkins, James Muir, Geo. Garvin, Thomas Cox, George Barch, Valentine Goodall, Alexander Goodall and Joshua Crutcher, started for the above named point to catch fish. After their arrival at the place, Mr. Crutcher entered the stream with the rope of the seine and commenced swimming across for the purpose of fastening it on the other side. When a little way out, it is supposed that he cramped, as he let go of the rope and commenced sinking. As soon as the danger was discovered, Royal Calkins hastily undressed, and, followed by Alexander Goodall and George Garvin, pushed out into the river to rescue the drowning man. In the confusion that ensued, Crutcher's cap and gun, who narrowly escaped, and both were drowned. Valentine Goodall, the father of young Alexander, while attempting to save his son, was also drowned. On Sunday, the three men were buried, the funeral procession to the cemetery exceeding in size any other ever witnessed before in our county. The funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Boynton. We had never formed the acquaintance of the deceased, but have heard them highly spoken of. Each leave behind and large families of children.

"You Know 'Tis Yourself!"

When a person wants to buy cheap, he goes where they sell cheap and can afford to sell at "bad rock prices."

"Which is Why"

So many are disposed to call on

FLANDERS & MARLIN.

"Which is the Same I Rise to Explain"

In the first place, they buy and sell for cash, whereas they sell as low as the lowest, and by selling for cash they are able to do business on a much smaller margin than if they sold on time.

"Add My Reason is Plain."

For they do not have to charge their goods, pay the customer's extra prices in order to make up what they lose on poor-paying sales.
